AN APOLOGY

The byproduct of a child's interest in the world is play. The child is not bound by the confines of the classroom, the desk, or the textbook. The child explores, experiments, and learns through play. It is through play that the child develops a love of learning and a natural curiosity about the world around them. The child's imagination is their guide, and they are not limited by the boundaries of traditional education. It is up to us, as educators and caregivers, to support and encourage this natural curiosity and passion for learning. Let us remember that play is the essence of childhood and the foundation upon which all learning is built.
